Special Section: Innovation in Undergraduate Curriculum

Editorial
Sharon McCarthy and Dawn Darlaston-Jones

Making Poverty History? The Impact of the Recession on Poverty Discourses in Australia
Ashleigh Owen

Endless Possibilities: Achieving Transformative Change on Poverty Using Community Currencies
Whitney Jade Darlaston-Jones

Academic Teachings vs ‘Real Life’ Experience: A Journey of Understanding Academia’s Usefulness Within Society
Stefanos Sifandos

Praxis: A Student Experience of the Behavioural Science Internship Conference
Jade Beavington

This Special Section presents four articles by students in the Bachelor of Behavioural Science program at University of Notre Dame Australia. As part of their Internship course, these and other students organized and presented an academic conference on issues of poverty in the wake of the global economic crisis. Their work exemplifies the critical community psychology orientation of the program. The opening editorial gives an overview of the program, internship, conference, and papers.

The journal can be accessed online at: