

Race, Culture and Disability

Rehabilitation Science and Practice

Fabricio E. Balcazar, PhD, Professor, Department of Disability and Human Development, University of Illinois at Chicago

Yolanda Suarez-Balcazar, PhD, Professor, Department of Occupational Therapy, University of Illinois at Chicago

Tina Taylor-Ritzler, PhD, Project Director, Center for Capacity Building on Minorities with Disabilities Research, University of Illinois at Chicago

Christopher B. Keys, PhD, Professor, Department of Psychology, DePaul University Chicago

Race, Culture and Disability: Rehabilitation Science and Practice is a guide to understanding the research and practical issues related to race, culture and disability in rehabilitation services. Due to an increase in ethnically diverse individuals with disabilities, this text is an extremely timely and relevant contribution for researchers, practitioners, and students. By bringing together the work of leading researchers to explore issues of race, culture and disability, this unique book provides the scientific resources necessary to answer practical and knowledge-based questions and resolve natural tensions.

Topics such as the appropriateness of common psychological tests to make disability determinations with people from diverse cultural backgrounds and non-English language populations and how to address issues of cultural competence and cultural mistrust in service provision are examined in depth. The book is enriched by the perspectives of the scientists who conduct research, the people of color with disabilities who live in this intersection, the practitioners who work with diverse populations, and the students and recent graduates who have learned and want to learn more about this research area.

ISBN-13: 978-0-7637-6337-4

Jones and Bartlett Publishers

Phone: 1-800-832-0034 | Web: www.jbpub.com