

University of Kansas

Department of Applied Behavior Science

Behavioral Psychology: Community Health & Development concentration

Degrees Offered: Doctorate (Undergraduate concentration also offered)

Website: <http://absc.ku.edu/>

AT A GLANCE

Full-time faculty: 20

Full-time faculty who identify as Community Psychologists: 2

Available assistantships: Research and teaching assistantships for both graduate and undergraduate students depending on the funding of the faculty and department.

The Program

PROGRAM ALUMNI INFORMATION

The program focuses on training researchers and practitioners. Graduates from the program are typically employed in government, education, healthcare, consulting, for-profit and/or nonprofit sectors.

Community Psychology Faculty and Research Interests

- Juvenile justice
- Autism and developmental disabilities
- Animal learning
- Behavioral economics
- Historiography of psychology and behavior analysis
- Organizational behavior management
- Remedial educational interventions
- Mentoring and youth development
- Adults with disabilities in community and group living environments
- Child clinical psychology
- Violence prevention
- Community health promotion

Living Community Psychology Features: Vincent Francisco